EXHIBIT MAKEOVER

The Deadwood History Information & Visitor Center, located at 3 Siever Street, is undergoing an exhibit makeover this summer! The Deadwood Historic Preservation Commission hired Split Rock Studios of Minneapolis, Minnesota to design and install the new exhibits at the depot. The new exhibits will replace the display panels installed in 1992 by the National Park Service and will feature items from the City Archives and the City's archaeological collections. The exhibits will incorporate the same design elements used in the Deadwood Welcome Center and Pluma Visitor Station at South Gateway.

Artifacts on display will include an 1858 Remington revolver from Deadwood resident Frederick M. Burroughs, military buttons unearthed from the Chinatown archaeological investigations, and an automobile axle from the Haynes Automobile Company unearthed during the 2005 Nelsons Garage archaeological investigation.

The new exhibit will showcase an HO scale diorama of Deadwood City, June 1876 created by Lead, South Dakota artist Jack Anfinson. The takeaway themes of the new exhibit include the history and importance of transportation in Deadwood and the diversity of historic preservation projects.

The new exhibits are scheduled for installation in September 2019.

MAIN STREET INITIATIVE LOCAL BUSINESS HIGHLIGHT

This month's featured business is Miss Kitty's Mercantile. Bob and Kim Fehr started the Prairie Harvest retail business in 2011 in the Deadwood Badlands. In 2013, the Fehr's moved the business to 649 Main Street and renamed the store as Miss Kitty Mercantile. They purchased the building in 2014 and have completely changed their retail merchandise. The business has excellent western wear clothing for women, men, and children. They can cover you from head to toe with a variety of hat styles, shirts, pants, boots and moccasins. If you're looking for belts, buckles, jewelry, old west badges, ceramic lights and even essential oils they have it for you. The Fehr's love to buy from local vendors and show case their pottery, jewelry and artwork. Bob, Kim and their daughter Kellie invite you to come on in and try a hat on and let them show you what they have to offer you and your friends.
