Another Historic Discovery in Deadwood

In June of 2017, construction workers discovered an archaeological feature associated with an early placer mining operation along lower Main Street at the Cadillac Jacks construction site. Upon close inspection, the feature was a partial adit (mine tunnel) that ran on the north/south axis along the western edge of Cadillac Jacks Gaming resort. At the time of discovery, this feature was buried 14 feet beneath Williams Street and was approximately four feet from the building foundation. This unexpected discovery occurred when part of the hillslope caved in exposing an eight foot void. Upon close inspection of the void, city staff discovered two vertical timbers partially buried in the cavity supporting a horizontal timber. City officials recognized the cultural significance of this discovery and notified archaeologists from Quality Services, Inc. of Rapid City who recorded the feature. In the fall of 2017, Liv Hospitality, LLC. Donated the logs and associated archaeological collection from the Cadillac Jacks monitoring project to the City of Deadwood. This winter, city staff will perform a detailed analysis of the logs to determine weight, length, historic cut patterns, functionality and age through dendrochronology. Upon completion of this mini winter project city staff will present its finding at the 2018 Mining History Conference scheduled for June 7-10, 2018 at the Lodge in Deadwood.

Different New Year's Resolutions to Try in 2018
Most people make New Year's resolutions, but most of us don't keep them. Some of our resolutions are too unrealistic to actually reach; some of us just give up too easily, and sometimes it's because our resolutions just aren't fun. Here are a few different resolutions to try this year that may be easier and more fun to keep. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Get Your Photo Taken in Five Interesting Places Make a New Year's resolution to visit five interesting places. It could be someplace nearby that you have never been to or someplace far off. Go visit and have a picture taken at each place.</li> <li>2. Break a Record You don't have to try and break a world record, start with a small personal record. Breaking that record will boost your confidence. Be sure to reward yourself when you do break it.</li> <li>3. Develop a Good Relationship With Your Body Instead of focusing on the parts of your body you don't like and want to change, make a resolution focusing on the things you like. This will boost your self-confidence and make you feel better about yourself.</li> <li>4. Learn Something You Never Learned as a Child Do you have something you never learned to do as a child like, riding a bike or swimming? Make a resolution to learn something you always wanted to. This way you will have the gratification of mastering something new.</li> <li>5. Try a New Food Each Week Instead of making a resolution to not eat specific foods try making a resolution to try a new food or recipe each week. Maybe you need more fruits and veggies in your diet so each week pick a new fruit, veggie or recipe you've never had before and try it. You never know you may find something you really like.</li> <li>6. Do Something Nice for Others Everyday Make a resolution that focuses on making the world a better place. Each day do something nice for someone else. It can be as small as paying a compliment or bigger like providing a meal to someone in need. Even the smallest act of kindness can change someone's day.</li> </ol>
